Please be advised that our office here in Fresno represents the interests of Briseida and Sukhjinder Sran and their family. Over the past few days, there has been a flurry of media activity as related to tragic disappearance of the couple's beloved 2 year old little boy, Thaddeaus Sran. Notwithstanding their very considerable worry and concern as related to these events, Mr. and Mrs. Sran nonetheless have necessarily accepted the fact that this type of troublesome event is necessarily news worthy.

On their behalf, however, my concern and that of theirs, of course, is the fact that it has been represented that the parents have purportedly "stopped cooperating" in the investigation, and that they are continuing to do so. This particular allegation is extremely troublesome to Mr. and Mrs. Sran, as well as to their extended family. Indeed, this assertion is not accurate in the first instance, and as well, causes them all considerable additional distress over and above the constant worries and fears attendant to that which might have happened to their little son.

The fact of the matter is that both parents immediately cooperated with law enforcement by giving their respective statements as to the circumstances associated with their discovery of Thaddeaus having become missing. However, after having communicated fully with law enforcement subsequent to Thaddeaus' disappearance, I am advised that the officers suddenly, and surprisingly under the circumstances, became accusatory in their questioning of Mr. and Mr. Sran.

Subsequent thereto, Sukhjinder Sran contacted me and conveyed to me the nature of the above-noted circumstances. I was advised that both he and his wife had become particularly troubled as related to the sudden change in the dialogue.

In light of what had apparently become the accusatory nature of the interrogation of this couple, I advised them in no uncertain terms to cease speaking with law enforcement without the presence of their attorney. They were instructed to relay to law enforcement that they were represented by counsel, and that they would, in light of the circumstances, respond to further questioning, but only in the company of their attorney, namely, the undersigned.

I am advised by the Srans that thereafter, no further effort was made by members of law enforcement to personally speak with them further.

In the final analysis, Sukhjinder and Briseida Sran remain available to do anything possible to assist in the investigation and in the hope of being able to locate their beloved son and to bring him home.
